"So, how are you?" Meera asked.

"As you can see I'm all great. It's been two years and," Raj replied.

Meera interrupted by saying, "I know. How can I forget? Believe me, I can recall every single day. Life's so unpredictable Raj.".

"Forget it. It's past. I hope you're doing well now." Raj added.

"What can happen to me? You were always there. Every day, every time." Meera acknowledged with a smile.

"So, what you remember so far?" Raj asked.

Meera replied,

Raj controlled his feelings at the border of his eyes and asked, "Sharp observer huh!! Looks like you noticed everything. Is it?".

Meera smirked with a tear in her cheek and said, "Nah, Raj. I never noticed you smiling. That was the only thing I missed."

After these words, she couldn't control her feelings for long and asked sobbingly, "Why do you love me so much? Everyone lost the hope, but you didn't. You're such an idiot. Why didn't you even move on? Why didn't you get married?".

Finally, Raj smiled and replied, "Marriage? How can I do that? My fiancée was in coma. I was waiting for her since last two years, you see. I guess she's fine now. What you say, Shall I propose her for marriage?".

Meera looked in Raj's eyes and asked, "Again?".

Raj replied, "Yeah, because she smiled beautifully with dimples when I proposed her last time and a yes from her side is always like cherry on top for me. Priceless moment, wasn't it?"

With a dimple smile, Meera replied, "Yes" and hugged him with the edge of love.